

Peyton Gillen
Frankfort-Schuyler
Grade 6

Being thankful means to be grateful or blessed for something or someone in your life. During this time of year people are being thankful. One reason is to show respect to something or people to thank them for something in life. Being thankful is important. One reason is to earn respect and to be looked up to.

I am grateful for my family. I am grateful for my family because they care for me. Another reason I am grateful is that I go to school to make friends and learn about math and history. This makes me grateful so I can strive for my best.

Another thing I am thankful for is my friends. I am grateful for my friends because they help me out a lot. I also want to thank them for being my friends and for their support through the years. They also include me in activities like sports and groupwork.

As you can see I am thankful in many ways for my family, friends, and the whole world. Thankful means many things but it is up to you to decide.