

NAME: Rowan Mccollum

I am thankful for the sunset veiled with gold, for night will at last come in, I am thankful for those green, green tree's for they are truly vital, I am thankful for my house and roof for without it i would shiver at night, I am thankful that the geese fly south to tell us it is winter, And the crickets that chirp outside on a summer night, for i believe without them things would be so silent that i should not sleep, I am thankful for that moment before the sun has risen, for when i am awake to see the sun arising i get to see a picture like something only a most talented artist could make, with golds, pinks, and the yellows of the sky,

I am thankful for the deer that comes to drink from our pond, it shows me signs of nature from beyond the brush, I am thankful for my family for- really everything they have done, I am thankful for this world, this world that creates my existence, this world created perfect with not a flaw, this world thats meant for us.
