

Patrick Connors

SJBDHS

10/28/21

Every year, no matter what happens, Thanksgiving comes around. No matter the weather, political scene, or current pandemic, Thanksgiving will come. Because of this, there is at least one day per year where everybody is reminded to be thankful, whether they are reminded to be thankful by someone else or read the name of the day. That day is Thanksgiving.

This Thanksgiving, I am grateful for many things, whether they be physical or mental. Physically, I am thankful for my family, my house, and my school. Without these things, I would not be able to live, and being reminded of how lucky I am to have these things is as important as ever. Mentally, I am thankful for my own mental health, as well as the relationships that I have been able to have, between family, friends, and even my cat Oliver. These relationships are something a lot of people are unable to have, so I am glad to be reminded of so.

Thanksgiving will be around forever; whether that be by the day itself or in the form of a reminder, it will be around. Even if a person's situation is bad, decent, or spectacular, taking a day to give thanks is an amazing thing.