Giving Thanks

Each and every year a special day comes around,
To give thanks to everything from the sky to the ground.
People give thanks to their family and friends,
While others smile for the roof over their heads.
It is easy to forget about all that we are given,
From the birds to the grass to the sun that is risen.
We take our blessings and we count them each day,
Because we never know the surprises coming our way.
So each and every night when you fall asleep,
Remember in your heart all the happiness and smiles you keep.
Each and every year, Thanksgiving day is here.
So tell people you love them and in your heart keep them dear.
