

What Qualities Am I Thankful For?

I have many qualities both good and bad. I am thankful for some of those qualities. The qualities I am most thankful for are the qualities that may help me out as I grow older.

One quality I'm most thankful for is my creativeness. My creativeness allows me to do a better job on projects, essays, and some classwork. My creativeness is one of my favorite things about myself, but there are other qualities for which I'm extremely thankful. One of those things that I'm thankful for is the way I act around those of which I am not fond. Even if I don't like someone, I make sure to still be kind and respect them as a person. This quality will probably make it easier to make friends later on in life. Although I am nice, I'm not easily taken advantage. These two qualities make a good combination, which is why I am thankful for them both.

My good qualities will most likely make life just a little bit easier in the future. Whether it's in high school, college, or when I'm an adult, these qualities might open a door for me and not someone else without these qualities. My creativity could help me get a good job. This is because my creativity would be a good quality in many jobs like a dance instructor, an illustrator, an artist, etc. My ability to be kind is also a good door opener. I could make lots of friends later on in high school, college, or whatever job I end up getting when I graduate college. I am grateful that God gave me qualities that will make my future better.
