

Thanksgiving Day Celebration

There are many good and bad qualities in the world. A quality is a trait that describes your personality. Some people's qualities define them as a person. Most people use their qualities for first impressions. Everybody has qualities but are they grateful for them? Are they worthy to have them?

A quality that I have for which I am thankful is my kindness and caring for others. I'm always putting other people before myself. If someone has a problem or needs help with something, I stop whatever I'm doing to assist them. If I know someone likes a particular snack that I have, I bring one for them everyday. If someone doesn't understand something, I try to help them. It's just who I am, I am grateful for it. Some people don't have these traits.

Everyone's qualities are different. Qualities define you. It is important to reflect on our qualities by thinking about these that make us who we are. This is because we are all unique.