

Thankful Writing

(Khloe Fuentes)

With new people to meet and locations to visit, life is intriguing and packed with surprises. Life is also complex and fascinating. After 13 years of existence, there are many things for which I am grateful.

I am grateful for both the good and bad things in my life. My life is made interesting and valuable by it. I am grateful for all of my blessings, despite the fact that I sometimes take them for granted. First of all, I'd like to express my gratitude to everyone in my life, especially my family, friends, teachers, and mentors. I've lived with my parents ever since I was born. My parents provide me with a secure place to live, delicious food, cozy clothing, etc. But more than anything else, they gave me life and helped me become the person I am today. There are many dreadful things in the world, including hunger, disease, and poverty. I am fortunate to have access to clean water and medication, though, so I don't get sick. I'm grateful that I can eat wholesome, freshly prepared meals every day. Because of this, I am able to fully experience each day. I am grateful for the healthy family I have today thanks to modern medicine. I am appreciative that I don't have to worry about illnesses in my food or water. I'm also grateful I don't often get sick or hurt. I'm grateful to have a body that allows me to travel. I'm also thankful for having a stress-free mind so I can work hard to succeed.

Finally, I want to express my gratitude for life and all that it has to give. The ability to live a happy life and spend time with the people I love is what matters most. I am grateful for every day that I wake up and I'm still alive. I am grateful for each and every person that has entered and left my life.
