

Thanksgiving Day Celebration

Thanksgiving is right around the corner. Thanksgiving is an annual national holiday celebrating the harvest and other blessings of the past year. It is a day where we acknowledge what we have and appreciate it. It is also a day where we stuff food into our mouths, who doesn't like food? There are many qualities that I am thankful for.

One important quality that I have that I am thankful for is discipline. I have always been a procrastinator, always setting aside my goals for "later". I then got introduced to the gym, where I learned discipline. I started going daily and started seeing progress. Like the gym, everything in life doesn't just come to you. You have to keep working and being consistent and disciplined for it. I started thinking about this and learned to be disciplined in everything that I do. It has helped me get closer to the future that I envision. Discipline is everything.

In addition, another quality that I have that I am thankful for is ambition. Schools and parents have always told us to set goals, however we tend to write things straight off of our head. Have we ever thought about how we want our future to be? To be ambitious means to be determined and have a strong desire to succeed. To me it means to never quit. I became ambitious and started succeeding my goals. When I became ambitious, it made me proud of my accomplishments, my friends were proud of me, and most importantly, my parents were. I am thankful for being ambitious because I get what I work for, maybe not right away, but the work always pays off.

The last vital quality that I have is humbleness. When you are humble, you receive a lot of respect, it means that you have respect. I learned to be humble because I am not any better than other students, everyone has their own life. "Pride makes us artificial and humility makes us real"- Thomas Merton. Humbleness has helped me push forward in life because I know that I am not better than anyone else, but I am wise enough to know that I am different. When you are humble, you mature. Humility helps you become a greater person

To conclude, it is important to acknowledge the qualities that you have and be thankful for them. My three most important qualities in life are Discipline, Ambition, and Humbleness. These qualities have helped me shape the person who I am today, making myself better every other day. Everyone has qualities or something that they are good at, they just might have not found it yet. Dig deep into yourself and discover new things about yourself. Happy Thanksgiving!
