I'm Anthony Sclafani and I am ten years old. Throughout the course of my life I have been grateful for countless things, such as, family, friends, and other different qualities that make me who I am. Today this essay will explain three different qualities that I have that I am grateful for. Before I explain my three qualities, remember that It is extremely important that you are grateful for what you have, because one day it might all be gone.

My first quality that I am grateful for is that I am intelligent. You may be asking why I am grateful for that? Well, the one big reason that I am intelligent is because I was enrolled into a catholic school. Some children don't have an education and it is important that everyone does. So I'm grateful because I was a child that had access to education, some people don't so I should be grateful for that.

My second quality that I am grateful for is that I am cautious. I am grateful for being cautious, because I'm sure that one day me being cautious might come in handy. Another reason I am grateful for being cautious is that it gives me good reflexes that can make me help others quickly. Others might say that being cautious is a bit annoying. However, in my opinion being cautious is not a bad thing, its actually a good thing that I am grateful for.

My third, and final quality that I am grateful for is that I am a creative person. The reason why I'm creative is that I've always been told to think outside the box. You also may be wondering why I am grateful for this trait? Well I'm grateful because being creative helps me excel in some of my classes, for example, during art class I have no problem thinking of a topic because of my skills to be creative. Another example is last year when I was in the Fourth grade, whenever my teacher assigned me a writing assignment I had no trouble of thinking how I would word it, or what topic I would do. Simply because I am creative.

I'm sure I can tell you about a lot more things I am grateful for, this was only three things. I did my best work on this essay, I was also very cautious while typing this essay just to make sure I didnt misspell anything, I also put alot of my intelligence and creativity into this essay.
