

There's many many qualities that people have. One quality that I have that I'm grateful for is my loyalty for ex One time one of my friends was talking bad about my other friend to me so I stood up for her and told her "why are you talking bad about *** then hanging out with her 2 minutes later she doesn't deserve that. I'm also loyal because when someone tells me about family problems and they tell me not to tell anyone I don't just go take their business to a gossip session instead ask them how I can help.

Another quality I'm grateful for is how thoughtful I am. Sometimes when I go to the store like a deli and I see something one of my friends like. I buy it for them without them asking because I know it'll put a smile on their faces. These are some qualities that I am grateful for this thanksgiving.
