There are many qualities that people have.

The qualities I am thankful for is the way I write and think.

People tell me I have a smart brain but I don't believe it because I want my brain to grow before somebody tells me that I'm smart.

But sometimes, thinking that everything is fine is hard for me because of the voices screaming in my head saying “ you’re nothing but a moron!..” or “ This is why it took you a week to make friends”. I stand strong and never listen to those horrible comments of hatred. No one told me to be perfect , no one told me that school is not only about learning or friends. Sometimes, you'd have to find out for yourself because not only is it difficult to do certain things, it's even harder to find out the hard way to do it. You know? Just because you're different from everybody doesn't mean you are not a human being. Society isn't what you think it is. You have to play dumb just to get your way in life. Make people think you're getting it but don't. Be yourself but don't. When you have people to tell you these things, you'd grow up to be a better person then you are right now. But if you don't, you'd grow up to be somebody who had bad expectations. Having people who help you is very important. This is called being lucky. Don't take advantage of that. Because one day, when you really need it, they will not be there for you. That means you have to make it on your own.

Alone, afraid , you stand there thinking, “what am i good for?” you drown yourself in paperwork, school, friends. But never have time to yourself. Nor have time for your other important things you have. To make time for yourself is difficult. Unfortunately, nobody thinks about this and just waste time instead of what's coming for you. My qualities are very special to me because without it, I wouldn't be writing this extraordinary poem, or I wouldn't think straight. Qualities maker a person cool, smart, loveable and awesome. whatever they do, thye use their qualities to help make it better. I am Thankful to this day for my qualities that make me special. The qualities that help me be a better person, and write better, and think better of myself. You can use your qualities for good, or bad, it depends. I would use my qualities for good because I love to write and write by using my knowledge to write inspiring things. For those who use their qualities for bad, they have to face the consequences of what they did. for example, if your qualities are getting in trouble a lot or doing things that your not supposed to do, you'd have to face those consequences if you had did them. These are the qualities that i have and i am happy to share with you.
