ThankFulness

There are many qualities that people have, the qualities that I am thankful for are Integrity, Energetic, Eager, Polite, honest, Social, respectful, Creative, Careful, Curious, and Understanding. I have these qualities because I think they describe me pretty well as a person. I know they describe me because I act the same way as the qualities that I described myself as. As I care about and thankful for my qualities that I have that make up my personality.

I know I have all of those qualities because they describe me, I have Integrity as well. I have Integrity because I am honest and I have good morals. One time when I had integrity was when I failed one of my tests and told my mom. I am Energetic because I am active, and don't feel tired during the day. One time when I was energetic was when I played basketball and football at the park at the same time for over 4 hours. I am Curious a lot of the time, I usually get curious when people whisper, something new is coming out or if someone else is talking about me. One time when I was Curious was when I heard 2 girls talking about me and started to try and listen to hear their conversation. I am also Eager because I am very excited about numerous things. One time when I was Eager was when a new movie named the "Five nights at Freddy's" while it was on my sister's birthday yet I still watched it because of how Eager I was to watch the movie. Some times I was Polite was when I held the door for my class or held it for my family, friends / ancestors. I know I was Polite because they said thank you and I said your welcome as a resemblance of appreciation for saying thank you.

I have a lot more qualities such as being Honest, I know I'm honest because I don't lie often and I tell the truth most of the time. One time when I was Honest was when I told the truth about what happened at my school about drama when I was in 5th grade. I consider myself social because I talk to a lot of people but still have social anxiety around new people. One time when I was social was during lunch when I was talking to my friends and socializing with them. I think I am decently respectful because I listen when other people are talking and talk when my hand is called upon. One time when I was Respectful when my teacher was clapping to get the class's attention and I paid attention to her whilst I clapped with the rest of my classmates. I am really understanding because I understand people's emotions and sometimes what they are going through and try to give them tips. One time when I was understanding was when my friend got a bad grade on their quiz and I told them that it would be ok because your grades are good and it wouldn't affect you as much as you think, as there are other ways to get your grades up. I am very creative because I've come up with things that people haven't and I was original. One time when I was creative was when I was in music class and we had to present about Composers, Musicians, and Artists, at the end of the slide show I put a jumpscare and everyone was shocked of who did it and they clapped as Me, liam, and Samuel my friends, sat down. One time when I was careful was when I was in lab class and I had Glass on a tray. I made sure to be very careful and tried not to drop it while taking it slow. I know I was being Careful because I made sure to take my time and made sure that it couldn't fall and break.

In conclusion I have many qualities that are important to me. They make up my personality and how I'm like. This is why I am thankful for them. I care about them a lot as my own qualities. And I'm fine with that.
