

~Thankfulness~

There are many qualities that people have, the qualities that I am thankful for are honesty, courage, self-awareness, integrity, and wholeheartedness.

One good quality to have is honesty. Honesty is when someone is truthful which means that the person does not lie. A time when someone was honest to me was when I asked my friends why they were talking about me. I went up to them and asked them why they were leaving me out. They told me that I was excluding myself and they thought that I wanted to be alone. In the end, we were all talking to each other and I was happy that they were very honest with me. Remember honesty is always key especially when you know you did something bad or wrong.

Another good quality to have is integrity. Integrity is when someone is honest and has good morals which means that they have a good attitude. The time I experienced integrity was by one of my school friends. She is very nice and kind to me everyday. She never lies and always stands up for me if someone is being mean to me. I like hanging out with her because she allows me to be myself around her.

A quality I personally like is courage. Courage is when someone is strong not physically strong but they use strong words and can stand up for themselves. My best friend has a lot of courage. She always stands up to people when they are being mean, lying, and being annoying in any type of way. I always like hanging out with her because she always fights back if anyone tries to be mean to us.

A quality that I personally think I have is self-awareness. Self-awareness is when someone feels like they said something wrong or hurt someone's feelings without the person telling them which means that they are aware if they said something wrong to hurt someone. I was self aware many times but there were two times when I really remembered every detail. So, one day I was telling a kid that they were annoying and I knew that they were offended but they didn't want to say anything because they probably thought that I was going to tell them more bad things. Another time when I was self aware is when I had a feeling that my friends did not want to hang out with me. They were all telling secrets to each other and didn't tell me anything. I asked and they still didn't say anything. They said that it was not anything important. Then we all were playing games in my friend's playroom when I suggested we play a fun game as I thought. But they didn't like my idea and went with someone else's idea. That was not fun in my own opinion, all we did was sit there and talk. They did not listen to what I had to say. I knew that they were avoiding me.

Finally, the last quality that I think is great to have is wholeheartedness. Wholeheartedness is when someone is sincerely devoted which means that they are loyal. I think that all my teachers are wholehearted because they are always loyal and help us with anything we need help with. Also, my family is wholehearted because we always think about each other and help each other. The last people that I think are wholehearted are my classmates and other kids in Middle Village Prep. They are wholehearted because they offer to help, they make funny jokes and are overall amazing people.

In conclusion, everyone has different qualities that make them special in their own way!

Note that I think is important: Always make sure to have good qualities and not bad ones.