There are many different qualities that people carry with them. Some qualities that myself and many others consider to be good qualities are honesty, loyalty, and communication. A quality that I have is creativity. The reason I say I am creative is because I come from an artistic family. Growing up I loved art and I've been surrounded by art. Creativity played a huge part in my life, my mom is an artist so I enjoy watching her paint. She encourages me to express myself artistically. I've picked up some of her techniques in digital art work, watching her create on her ipad. She makes a living being an artist so having creativity is a great quality to have.

Humor is a good quality. Being humorous can take you very far in life. In my opinion if you can make someone laugh you can brighten up their day. Being a humorous person can also show that you can be an emotionally intelligent person by turning frowns upside down. Personally, I think I'm hilarious.(I was literally laughing while typing this line) There are times when I go to visit my grandmother and I bug her and be extra silly to make her laugh... and it works like a charm!

A quality that I hardly hear is flexibility. Being flexible is a quality that my aunt has. She is reliable. Always makes time for our family. Flexible people fit into your life like a puzzle piece and can always be accommodating to you. I can learn from people like that to have that personality trait too. Having a flexible person on your team can help fill in the blanks and keep the ball rolling. For example, if a job had a flexible staff then it would lead to success.

Communication is key. When someone can communicate it leaves no room for guessing. It can be very straightforward and helpful getting tasks done. Someone that has communication skills can verbally assist with finding resolutions to problems. Having good communication in relationships can help build strong bonds. Communicating can help people understand why you feel a certain way. Communication in sports helps too. For example when a football team huddles before a play and they need to get a touchdown, the quarterback is going to communicate to the person open.

A strong quality is patience. It's a good exercise of self-control. Patience can create confidence, and helps see life in a thoughtful way. Making you notice the small important things in life. Patience can help you get through difficult times gracefully. Not having patience makes someone aggravated or short tempered. Teachers and school staff have patience. They deal with different personalities on a daily basis. At times it can be difficult but because they understand their job, they are patient. The best teachers have the most patience.

In conclusion, these qualities in this essay all are ones that I either have or working up to have. Thankfully I am surrounded by people that show these qualities in my everyday life. Having people like that around helps mold me into the person I am now, and I am sure that they will continue to instill the best qualities in me. As I get older I get to pass on to the next person for generations to come. Writing this essay helped me become aware of certain traits and qualities that I wasn't fully mindful of, like flexibility, patience, and mostly communications. It helps me appreciate the people around me, and what they do for me.
