

She's a sixteen year old female giving it her best shot to..

To what exactly

Some might say to make it to their highschool runway to feel their last bit of euphoria before their thrown into the great unknowns of college

Some might say to make it to the seemingly moving too slowly high school graduation so they can start afresh in the exciting chapter labled 'college life' in their great big diary filled with future plans

Some might say their waiting to see what the great, uncharted future brings

But

She's just sixteen

Sixteen with highschool events in a town that is filled with all of the United States 331.9 billion people

Sixteen with sports teams that feel like a second family

Sixteen with family and friends that hold the kernels to her everlasting smile

Sixteen with the present of time rapidly slipping through her fingers

So what is she giving her best shot to do exactly

I might say she's giving it her best shot to live in the present we call now

But who am i to say that

After all i'm forty-three year old female

With the time to stop and enjoy the fun times passed by

Giving it my best shot to hope that

I'm a sixteen year old female giving it my best shot to enjoy being sixteen