

▪THANK YOU, RAIN▪

Polka dots of you on the window pane

Down my face as I hear his name

Over and over a pattern of pain

Though my world was crashing down

I still heard your sound

Telling me to take a breath,

And to let him rest

Now whenever you come by my door

I run like how he ran before

And though you take me back to that time,

I thank you for it every night

You're like a memory glued to my chest

Holding me as a water vest

And if i'd ever were to drown,

I would lose all i'd have of him now

In time, I'm sure my friend

I will forget him yet again

You'll hold me close and drown my tears

and say what you have been saying for years

'Take a breath and let him rest,

You will see me yet again'.
