

THANKFUL

~for life~

I am thankful for every moment I am given to live, the ups and downs that drive me through life, and those who stand by me and guide me through the good and bad days:

the hours and days spent in the hospital,
watching the sun rise on the beach,
enjoying my last game with some of my best friends:
each reminds me to keep fighting.

I have spent years building relationships with my teammates to come to the realization that in a few months I will be walking across the stage, transitioning my tassel and beginning my new journey.

I have learned to enjoy life and value each moment I am given to live. In times when you are experiencing what feels like the hardest and most painful days of your life, those who surround you will bring you the joy you need to encourage you, and remind you to keep fighting.

Brianna Roth

