

What I am Grateful For...

I am thankful for my positivity. I am thankful for it because it has helped me get up and keep going. My positivity helps me look at the good side of situations. When I first started drawing, people told me it looked like trash and always judged the way I drew things, but I took the criticism as a way to propel me to progress and make my art better. If I didn't have my positivity, I would have quit drawing and it would have taken away some highlights of my day.

I am also thankful for my openness to people. I am thankful for this quality in myself because if I didn't decide to go talk to this person or try to tell them something, I would have never met my best friends or had someone to talk to in the morning. If I never went up to Carisa, we would have never had the strong bond we now have and never had the fun memories together.

Another thing I am thankful for is my passion for art. My Passion for Art feels like it is growing every time I make a new art piece. The passion for art helps me have a great day even in some gloomy times. It helps me think of new things to make either on the design of a dress or a piece of jewelry. The passion of art helps me see what I am possibly capable of and what I would need to progress on.
