

I am thankful for many things. I am thankful for my life. I am thankful for my education. Most importantly, I am thankful for my family. There are lots of things to be thankful for. Personal traits and qualities are a good example. Many people excel at different things. It could be academics, It could be athletics, or It could just be something as simple as socializing. Those skills and qualities are something that everybody should be thankful for. Me included.

I would like to say that I have some good qualities. A few I'm very thankful for. One being my height. My height helps me in my everyday life. I can reach things in high places my family simply cannot reach. That is very helpful. I feel a lot better knowing I can help my family in ways that might cause a bit of an inconvenience for them. My height is also a nice way to make good conversation. My friends and I constantly tease each other about our heights. That always makes me laugh. So I am pretty thankful for my height.

I am also very thankful for my public speaking skills. I find it sometimes difficult to connect with my peers face to face in school or out in public. However, I have no problem speaking in front of large crowds. This is very helpful to me. For example, My dad couldn't speak at an event because he wasn't feeling well. He asked me if I would speak on his behalf. I said yes. I ended up speaking on his behalf in front of about 30 people in a church. I also used to utilize this skill when I would perform in community theater. I acted in lots of plays and musicals. The size of the crowds I performed in front of varied quite a bit. However, I would estimate that the average audience number was around 50-60 people. The largest crowd I ever performed in front of was probably about 100 people. That being said, I am very thankful for my ability to easily speak in front of large crowds.

Those are the qualities that I am most thankful to have in my life. Everybody should be thankful for something, whether it's food, shelter, or even simple life skills. I am thankful for not just the qualities I listed, but for this amazing opportunity as well.
