

Hello I'm MJ Sanacore and was thankful for lots of things this year like having a house, having food, having a family. In this essay I will be talking about these things and why I am thankful for them.

I am thankful for having a house because there are some people out there that don't have a home and are living on the streets asking for money they have no bed no roof over their head they have nothing. All they have is probably ripped up clothes and a jar asking for people to donate money since they have none for a house and things like that. So I am thankful that I have these things that some people beg for.

I am thankful for having food because there are people that have to pick and choose what nights to have dinner because they don't have the money to buy it. Some are even homeless and can't even pick the days to have dinner cause they no money at all to buy any dinner. People wake up on thanksgiving feeling like its just a normal day and they won't be having a big feast.

I am thankful for having a family because some people don't have a family to be loved by and cared about. A lot of people wake up with no one by side nobody celebrate maybe your birthday or special occasion. I also need someone to support me throughout my life and some people don't have that and I am very thankful for that.

In conclusion,I am very thankful for what I have because a lot of people out there are homeless and don't have what I have. So when you really want something and don't get it try to think of the people that don't have anything.
