

What Am I Thankful For?

It's finally here, the day where I wake up to the smell of a roasting turkey. Thanksgiving- the day I celebrate the amazing things I am able to do and have. On this day, I'm extra positive and happy for the wonderful people and things around me. My relatives come over, we play games, and have a delicious meal. My name is Isabella and I'm thankful for many things in my life.

I am very thankful for the incredible people in my life that love me for who I am. My family supports me every step of the way, especially through my transition to middle school. To be honest, I was anxious about going to a new school, meeting new people, and the way the school works. My family assists me whenever I need help and they push me to be the best I can be. Even though it can be hard sometimes, I know they push me only to help me in life. All in all, my family is ridiculously amazing and supportive, but most importantly, they love me for who I am.

The amazing friends I have are so loyal, honest, and are always there when I need them. I can't believe that I have amazing friends like them because I would never even think of me deserving the astonishing people they are. I feel so lucky and special that they are a part of my life. They always put a smile on my face no matter what situation. They would never try to hurt me and if they did, it would be an accident. They are so loyal and they are the best friends a person could ever dream of.

To be able to go to school is something I'm very thankful for. Of course I sometimes dislike school, but I always remind myself that a lot of kids don't have the opportunity to get an education. They don't get to have an education and I feel very lucky that I do. Learning more things will allow me to get a good job. Therefore, education will lead me to a successful life and I feel bad for the kids all around the world that don't get to learn.

Another thing I'm thankful for is living in America. We have the freedom of speech which is the right to express any opinions we want. There are also many various job opportunities in America. You can be a doctor, a lawyer, a psychologist, etc. There are so many jobs to choose from and you should get a job you like so you don't waste time doing something you don't like. Get a job you are happy with so you don't waste your time, energy, and money. In America, most people get the opportunity of doing what they love for a living which is why I'm thankful to live here. In conclusion, I'm very grateful for the people in my life and the things I'm able to do and have.
