THANKFULNESS IS THE SOIL
IN WHICH JOY THRIVES.

IT IS NOT HAPPY
PEOPLE WHO ARE THANKFUL.
IT IS THANKFUL
HAPPY.

Thankfulness :: being thankful to God
for all of His blessings -
those we see and those we do not see.

NJHS:What I'm Thankful For

Introduction

Have you ever thought of what you are thankful for? There are many people that are less fortunate than you. I am very thankful for what I have. In my essay, I will express my feelings to what I am thankful for this past year.

What I'm Thankful For

I am thankful for many things. Such as, my parents, my siblings, my family, and my toys and games. I am a very lucky child. I am also thankful for the food I have, my neighbors, my wealth, and my education and grades to be in such a great school. Lastly, I am very thankful for my home, my clothes, and finally my friendly community. These are some things I am thankful for during the past year.

The Less Fortunate

There are many less fortunate people out in the world. You should never brag about how wealthy you are or how much you have because there are many people who are poor and survive with less quality items than we have. You should be thankful for what you have. Barely or never ask for more and more because some day you can become poor or lose your home, life, or a family member.

Conclusion

In conclusion, I and other people should be thankful for what we have. I am very thankful for what I have and know that there are less fortunate people out in the world who deserve more. This is my essay on what I am thankful for.
