When Thanksgiving was first invented, the Pilgrims decided to make a tradition with the Native Americans. It was to give thanks to one another. People decided to keep the tradition going. This tradition is still going on and will be for many more years.

Personally, I am thankful for having a good family and friends. My family loves to spend time with me. Every Sunday morning, my family and I go to Bloomingdale Park, with our dog. My mom goes with my cousins for a long walk, while my brother, dad and I play football. My friends like to spend time with me, too. My friends and I play soccer and basketball during recess. We never have fights when we hang out. My friends on my block like to play baseball with me after they both finish their homework. On Sunday evening, my friends come over and we like to play board games, or we like to watch the New York Jets game on television.

This is why I am so thankful for having a good family and good friends, because they are always right by my side and I know that they love me and enjoy having me in their life.
