

Earth Without...
By Zyan Mazan

Earth without gravity would explode,
Earth without sunlight would freeze,
Earth without water would be a dry, boring land,
Earth without a magnetic field would be surrounded by radiation,
Earth without plants and trees would burn,
Earth without a moon would go insane with its ocean waves, Earth without Jupiter and the atmosphere would have dents after naming all the meteoroids to meteorites crashing within the core of its heart, but what if Earth just lost us?
What if we all just disappeared one day?
Then what would happen? We would beg to Earth,
And Earth would say "I would improve,
I'll grow back my greenery,
I will live a happy life with all the other planets,
I would go back to living for billions of years,
Trees, plants, and animals would all have fearless life,
Buildings would be taken by Mother Nature,
My ozone layer would be fixed,
But sadly, this dream may not be true."

Zyan is a 7th grader at Howard T. Herber Middle School, Malverne, NY
This poem was created in the Adelphi University STEP/LPP program.