

Alan Wang 5-316 P.S. 176

I am thankful for the Earth on which we live because it provides us with water and food and shelter. It gave us life with its resources over the years. It is the only known planet with life and strong stable water. It is the third planet from the sun which is the perfect distance from the sun to be not too hot and not too cold. It takes the sun's light 8 minutes and 20 seconds to reach the Earth.

The first reason I am thankful for the Earth is because it provides us with food and water. This food and water keeps us alive and there are many kinds of food like desserts and meats which have many different flavors. This is an important reason because without food or water we would have starved or died of dehydration in just a couple of weeks. An important issue about water is that there is less than 2% left of natural water left in the wild. Another important issue is that many people are starving because they don't have enough money to buy food. Even though I'm very thankful for food and water, I wish I could give it to other people in need.

Another reason is that the Earth provides us with shelter which keeps us warm in cold weather and cool in hot weather. Shelter also provides us with protection from animals and unwanted pests like wasps. It also keeps us safe from natural hazards/disasters like tornados and sandstorms. Shelter also allows us to keep food safe from predators and it also helps us keep the food longer without it spoiling. Shelter can be shared too with family and friends. It also keeps board games safe for heavy storms or black outs. One important issue with this is that there's many people in need of shelter to protect them from danger.