

I Am Thankful For My House By Andrew Mullen

Have you ever thought about what you are thankful for? I am thankful for my house because it keeps me warm during winter and cold during summer. I am thankful for my house because it lets me play and do activities, and it also makes me feel safe. I think my house is the most special place on earth.

One reason I am thankful for my house is because it keeps me warm during the winter and cold during the summer. One example is when I come home from soccer it warms me up. Another example is when I get home from camp it cools me down before I play golf. A third example is I can have lots of blankets.

Another reason I am thankful for my house is because it lets me play and do activities. First of all during the morning I can play foosball in the basement. For instance when I am in my room I can do my homework. Lastly, when my family has free time I can play board games with them.

One final reason I am thankful for my house is because it makes me feel safe. One example of this is it makes me feel safe during storms. Another example of this is it makes sure nobody comes into my house. A third example is when the power goes out it makes sure the lights go back on.

In conclusion, my house is the best because it keeps me warm during winters and cold during summers. Another reason is it lets me play and do activities and it also makes me feel safe. It allows me to play tackle football with my brother. That's why my house is the best.
