

I am thankful for so many things in my life, if they are in my school, my house, or other states and countries in the world. But I am especially thankful for my cat, Prespaw. He has gone through so much, from when my parents got him to surgery. He is a great pet because of so many reasons. Examples are how he is almost always in my room before I go to sleep, he always jumps on my lap when I am sitting on the couch, acts so nice when we get back and is always purring.

Not too long ago he had to go through surgery. He had something that looked like an abscess on his body. Later he had to get surgery after a few months and we were very worried for him. But he got better after it and now he is back to the great cat we all know. I am always very excited to see him when we get back for a trip. As I said in the introduction, he is always extra nice when we get home because he misses us so much. We always hire a cat-sitter to take care of him when he's gone, and she always sends pictures of him.

I am extremely grateful for my cat, and I could not have asked for a better one. I really hope that he keeps being as great as he always has, being so nice all the time, coming to me every time I am about to go to sleep, always going on my lap and purring, and so much more!
