I think being thankful is about love and not being mad about things you don't like and to live in the moment. I think you should not let one little thing mess up your day. If you get upset about one little thing you will not see what is in the world. Four things I am grateful for is my family. Another thing I am grateful for is my friends. I am also grateful for my teachers. The last thing I am grateful for is my best friends. My essay will be about what I am grateful for.

Im am grateful for my family because if I am sad they will be there for me. Also they will always feed me and give me a cozy bed to sleep in until I move into my own house. The thing my family does for me is give me a bed to sleep in and give me a yummy meal and be there for me. My family makes me feel happy because there is nothing I don't have. I have everything I need. Family is important to me because there is no one else that will be there for you like your family will.

My friends are special to me because when I am sad they will ask me what is wrong. If I get hurt they will tell the teacher and take me to the nurse. Things I do with my friends are either call on the phone or play video games. We also go to the park. One more thing we do is go to the movies with our parents. One time a friend made me feel happy was when one of my friends said something mean and another friend said that I'm not what he called me. I felt better when she said that I was not what he said. I appreciate my friends. They are so nice even when the boys are mean. My other friend makes me laugh so I'm not sad.

I am thankful for my education because I get to learn fun things that I never knew before and I get to learn them now. My teachers are also so nice. I am thankful for my sports and activities because I get to do really cool tricks that are dangerous but still very fun. I also have a lot of friends there. I am thankful for cheer and swimming. I am thankful for cheer because I love to try new things and I get to do that at cheer. It is scary sometimes but it is still fun. I like swimming because I get to learn different swims. I also get to protect myself if there is an emergency and I have to swim. I have learned that being thankful is that there are other things that you can worry about later. You have to enjoy what you have in front of you.

I am thankful for my family because they are always there for me when I need them. Being thankful means to not be mad about one little thing or you won't see what is in the world. I have learned to look at what is in front of your eyes to enjoy life. Be grateful and don't be mad. See you in the next essay bye bye.
