

Thankful Essay

By Celia Capobianco

Our Lady of Good Counsel School

Parent: Kristen Capobianco 917-842-8625

What is the meaning of being thankful? To be thankful means to love or have gratitude towards something or someone. I am thankful for things such as my family, friends, sports, and education. I am proud to be thankful for these things.

I am thankful for my family because they support and love me. My family does a lot for me, like hanging out with me and supporting me. They always help me when I need them to. Also they comfort me when I feel sad. My family always makes me feel loved. My family is important to me because they bring me happiness in my life.

My friends are special to me because they understand me. We always hang out together. We share secrets, play, and help each other out. One time I got hurt and my friend supported me. I trust my friends and appreciate them.

I am thankful for my education because of my teachers and classmates. I am thankful for sports because of my teammates and working together. My teachers help me if I don't know something. My teammates support me when I do well. I learned that being thankful doesn't have to mean loving something or someone, it can mean appreciating something or someone.

I am thankful for family, friends, education, and sports. Being thankful means to have gratitude for something or someone. I've learned that gratitude means to appreciate something or someone. I am very lucky to have all these beautiful things in my life.