A Thanksgiving Night Surprise

One day on a Thanksgiving night, nobody expected this weird fright.
A dinner was served, but something was off.
Where's the turkey gone off?

As people started to panic,
as people started to get frantic,
a rat appeared, slowly but surely,
and he brought the turkey along with the gravy.

He brought his whole family, and then the other family started to realize:
it's not all about the turkey, nor the food and gravy.
It's about the family and the qualities that we own.

Now come along and sing a song about our qualities and our lives.
So do tell me what your quality is.

As the family sang a song, and they all ate,
they all began to sing about their families.
My quality is kind of silly, but what about yours?
Now we sing about ours—and for the encore.
