I'm grateful for the culture, all throughout the city blocks, different people, diverse cultures, all beautiful, all magnificent in every single way.

As the clock strikes twelve, a single door opens, more opportunities, in this culturally diverse city, as I think about the outcome, that will come from this city for me.

I'm thankful for the different opportunities given to me by the people of this city, the caring community, giving me golden opportunities I can use.

The cultures, the opportunities within this city, opening a pathway to the world, and success, brings me joy.

New York is a beautiful city, and it gives us the chance to use it, to begin my way, to success.
