2025 has been a very interesting and exciting year. I have gotten to meet so many new people, and I am trying new things. But what I'm thankful for is my baby cousin Hailey. She just turned two this year and I love that I am watching her grow. It's just amazing to me. It feels like she was just born yesterday. Something else that I am thankful for is that she is in school and learning so many new words and things in that nature.

Words can not explain how much that little girl has impacted my life and family. She was actually an angel sent. I feel like it brought my family together even more and just more love in the air. You can also tell by the energy or aura she has around her you can feel the love when she comes in. She is definitely a very family originated girl which is kinda a flex to me.

Hailey is my actual mini me everything that I did when I was younger I slowly see she's doing and it's interesting to me. It's kinda ironic as well because I never think she will act like me. I say this because I thought I did different stuff than what another kid did but I try to open her variety and show her old Disney movies or shows that I wish I watched when I was younger. So I guess I'm trying to make her a little more like me but it's whatever.

I'm not going to just rant on how similar we are because we are very much different and she does know how to get me annoyed. But like for example she loves sharing and I did not mainly just food. But I still didn't enjoy it. She tries to take my lashes off of my eyes which is insane to me but at least she's trying to help me take them off. But I do kinda play around with her as well but it doesn't last long because she throws a fit sometimes but then we are besties again.

But she is and always be someone I'm thankful for.
