Thankful Essay

Being thankful can be one of the most important things of your life, but how? Being thankful is a form of good manners; good manners are our way of doing polite things in life in how we act and behave towards others. I'm thankful for family, friends, education, sports, and nature. Do you want to find out why I'm thankful for all of these things? Well, keep reading! Maybe they can help you too!

I'm thankful for my family because when I'm sad and can't find a way to do things myself, my family will always be there to comfort me. They also help me in hard times and with difficult decisions. One time when I didn't feel good, my friend was asking me if I could come over. I wanted to go but I still didn't feel like it. As soon as I told my parents, they helped me out with the situation. They said, "This stuff happens, but you can ask them to come over when you are feeling well." I didn't want to wait, but I should always trust my family at all times. My family makes me feel happy and content. I don't know what I would do without my family.

I'm thankful for my friends because they always make me think outside the box and also make me laugh a lot. I like telling them secrets in their ear and making them tell each other to see who laughs first. Oftentimes, my friends make me burst out in laughter. One time when I was feeling left out and shy to join in with others, my friend noticed and came over to speak with me. She was able to get me to join in the chatter and fun with the rest of our friends. This made me feel included and really joyful! I think everyone deserves a good friend in this world.

I'm thankful for education because school helped me gain so many friends, and I learned many new things. School also made me feel strong and confident. School made me feel strong because I play soccer for my school, and I love to be competitive and also cooperate with my friends on my team. School made me confident because during tests I know I learned and studied, and I know I'm ready to get that good grade!

I also love nature because I enjoy the fresh air and the decoration by planting just one tree, or many. Just by looking at nature, you can feel comforted and take a deep breath in fresh natural air. Nature is considered important to all of us because it gives us resources. Resources are important materials that we use to live a modern life. Especially because trees are natural resources. In particular, trees give us wood, paper, and also furniture. Nature is a great example of something to be thankful for.

Overall, I have a lot to be thankful for. That's what makes me feel good about myself. Being thankful is so important, that there's even a day for it! We call it Thanksgiving! Thanksgiving is one of the most thankful celebrations we have on our calendar. Thanksgiving is in November. Just because there's a whole entire day for being thankful, that doesn't just mean we should only be thankful on Thanksgiving. We should always be thankful, it's a good thing about ourselves! If you are thankful, people will enjoy being around you and will also be thankful for you. Be thankful for what you have and everything around you, and go and live a thankful life!
